The Interdisciplinary Approaches in Life Sciences (AIV) Master of Paris Diderot and Descartes universities is an interdisciplinary two-year program tackling with quantitative approaches different interfaces with Life Sciences. It aims at training creative and talented students to develop their research in an environment as enriching as the best world graduate programs. The program is based on learning through research pedagogy—rich with research internships and on collaborative projects. The program is funded by the Bettencourt Schueller Foundation.