Foreword

I would like to announce that I will be leaving my post at the Office of Science and Technology at the end of August, at which point my successor will take over. I am very thankful to all of our readers who have been able to create a network between French and American scientific institutions through this medium. Once in France, I will continue to work in international relations at the University of Lyon, specially dealing with the United States and Canada. I appreciate all of the support that you have given us over the years during events or projects and I hope that the level of scientific cooperation between the US and France will continue for many years to come.

We would like to highlight that INRA is recruiting 51 researchers with experience in defining and implementing research project. You will find more information in the highlight section.

The next newsletter will be published in September.

Have a great summer!

Enjoy your read!

Adèle Martial, Scientific attaché
Cécile Camerlynck, Deputy scientific attaché
