ANRT is a non-profit organization created in 1953. The ANRT was created by the principal actors of the R&D in France, companies and public organizations of research. Its role is to help improve the system effectiveness of research and innovation. The world evolution indicates the way to be followed: to decompartmentalize, make barriers fall, to cooperate: between laboratories and companies, disciplines, competitors, actors of different countries... All that requires information, reference marks, benchmarking, grounds and methods of exchange and dialogue, as well as the development and the practice of rules of co-operation. The action of the ANRT consists in helping the actors of the innovation by proposing them tools in these various registers, in order to connect, open, decompartmentalize.