The evaluation committee of Operation Campus, wanted by President Sarkozy in order to reinforce the attractiveness and international visibility of French universities, met July 11 for a second time to chose the last four projects. Valérie Pécresse, Minister of Higher Education and Research, decided, in line with the committee’s opinion, to select Aix-Marseille, Paris-Aubervilliers, and Saclay. A portion of the Operation Campus funds will be reserved for an intramural Parisian project and given by the evaluation committee based on the audit committee’s conclusions in July.
