San Francisco is the largest French consular chapter in the world, it covers the states of North California, Oregon, Washington, Hawaii, Idaho, North Nevada, Utah, Wyoming, Montana, Alaska, Guam and Samoa.

The Office for Science & Technology in San Francisco is specifically devoted to the study of the following sectors: energy, IT and life sciences.

Conveniently located close to Stanford University, UC Berkeley, the Lawrence Berkeley and Lawrence Livermore National Labs and of course Silicon Valley, the Science Office closely follows what's happening in this exciting domain in the heart of the green revolution.
