In 2015, New England region continued to play a major global role in Biotechnology and Life Sciences as was seen by new companies, IPOs, Mergers and Acquisitions, and finally, evolution of local real estate. The rising figures reflected an industry-wide focus on drugs for rare diseases and key areas of critical unmet medical needs.

Join this conference to meet local MA companies as well as researchers, sciences & business leaders from both sides of the Atlantic as they analyze fast-changing development in Life Sciences both in New England and in Europe. For the third consecutive year, this must-attend program will address core topics of interest for both young and large companies, and offers networking opportunities for biopharma professionals. Topics will include, an expert review of events, perspective on the upcoming year, trends in finance and investment, discussions around innovation and new technologies, along with how to bring these to the patients.
